Clinical Preceptorships

Some benefits of a preceptorship are the development of mentoring relationships with lead clinicians that can lead to long-term consultative relationships and exposure to actual clinical care experiences with patients. The program is intensive and takes place over a concentrated period of time to ensure access to clinicians with small windows of availability.

The AETC can design a Preceptorship for clinicians (Physicians, PAs, NPs, RNs, and Pharmacists) where you will be paired with one of our experts for a period of time that can involve didactic lectures, skills-building sessions, case conferencing, and clinical observation. Our preceptorships require a minimum of four hours but can last as long as a month or more.

The Preceptorships are co-designed with you as the learner. You communicate your educational goals and objectives, and we pair you with one of our experts on site or with one of our partnering organizations (other NY/NJ AETC Local Performance Sites). After the program details are determined and you are paired with a Preceptor, we will schedule you to come on-site based on times you are available.

If you are looking for something longer than a brief few days encounter, the preceptorship can become a “mini-residency” where you will shadow one of our clinicians for an extended period of time. Whether you have a few hours, days or even weeks, we are happy to design a course of study with you that will help enhance your knowledge and skills.

Perfect for:

A preceptorship is a perfect opportunity for our primary care providers to gain knowledge and experience related to HIV disease management and treatment. As more and more persons living with and affected by HIV gain access to care through insurance and education, there is a developing need for all care environments and care providers to have some knowledge about HIV. We can help prepare your health care setting for this new model of care by giving you and your staff the experience you will need to meet this new challenge.
